So who are Xerosun?

Described as an industrial hard rock/alternative band, Xerosun have created a unique, explosive and energetic sound. With an eclectic mix of influences, their portfolio of original material has led them to a variety of venues and wowing an array of audiences all across Ireland.

It all began back in January 2003, when the creative, like-minded talents of Dan (Guitars), Fi (Guitars) and Richie (Drums) came together and formed Xerosun.

June 2004 saw the recording of the band's first EP, "Ghost" in Grouse Lodge Recording Studios. The tracks "Ghost", "In My Mind" and "Alone", were chosen by voters on the band's website.

Pushing their boundaries ever further, the summer of 2005 saw Xerosun finance and produce their first music video for the fan favorite "Ghost", and in the August, recording the follow up to the "Ghost" EP which featured 2 of the band's own songs, as well as their version of the Depeche Mode classic "Never Let Me Down Again".

No stranger to the media, the guys have been interviewed and performed on television and radio on numerous occasions, the biggest of which came in January 2006, when Xerosun performed live to half a million people on Irish National television.

In April 2006, the band solidified and enhanced their sound with the addition of Bassist/Vocalist Ives into the fray and the transfer of Fi from Bass to Guitar duties & their third EP, "Broken", was completed in January 2007.

Xerosun have just finished filming their second Music Video for their forthcoming single "Silent Call", which is soon to be shown on Irish National TV, and available on YouTube.com
